A Thorpe tube flowmeter is an instrument used to directly measure the flow rate of a gas in medical instruments. It consists of a connection to a gas source, a needle valve opened and closed by turning an attached dial for control of flow rate, a float resting in a clear tapered tube, and an outlet port. It is primarily used in health care institutions during delivery of medical gases, often ...

"Thermal comfort mediates behavioral modification of heat loss, the most important thermoregulatory response in humans. Thermal comfort is determined by skin-surface temperature, not by tissue heat content, cutaneous heat flux, or central temperature. However, comfort produced by a local thermal stimulus depends both on the location of the stimulated skin and the rate of temperature change.
