British modernist writer Virginia Woolf (1882-1941) is famous for the novels "Mrs. Dalloway" and "To the Lighthouse" and is equally known for her pioneering feminist spirit in such works as "A Room of One's Own." Despite her literary success, she suffered from depression throughout most of her life and in 1941, she was so deeply unhappy that she walked into the River Ouse with her pockets full of stones and drowned herself.
